Tim and Jess had a new puppy called Rex. Rex was a very cheeky and scruffy dog who loved getting dirty. They loved Rex very much but they would often squabble and argue about whose turn it was to hold Rex's lead.

One day, Tim and Jess took Rex for a walk on the path that led to the quarry.

Suddenly, a quad bike whizzed past and splashed them with mud. They wiped the mud off their faces and carried on to the pond. When they got there, Rex saw a swan and jumped in to try and chase it, but the swan got away.

"Oh Rex! You're muddy and wet now," sighed Jess as Rex climbed out. Tim looked at his watch.

"It's time to go home," he said.

"Goodness me!" exclaimed Dad when they got back. "Rex looks like he has been in a swamp! You had better wash him and get him clean."

Tim ran the water and Jess got the towel and dog shampoo.

"I wish we had a magic wand to get Rex clean," said Jess.

"Can we swap jobs, please?" asked Tim. "This is taking ages."

Tim picked up the shampoo, but his hand slipped and he tipped out the wrong quantity. There was too much shampoo and Rex, Jess and Tim were covered in bubbles!

"Oh dear!" said Dad as he came into the room. "It looks like I'm going to have to wash all three of you now!" he laughed.
